

2023 NBS-AERho National Convention

Joins

Educating for Tomorrow's Media

In Las Vegas April 15-18

(Page and links updated February 8, 2023)

- * 200 sessions (33 targeted for students)
- * Scholarships for registration and expenses
- * Choice of hotels to fit your budget
- * Attend media events, sporting events, and entertainment in your free time
- * Paid internships for the convention
- * Access to the National Association of Broadcasters convention floor
- * Career Fair
- * Hands-on Training
- * See the latest in media technology
- * Learn, network, have fun!

Earlybird registration until March 10 = $95 (student ID required at check-in)

- To facilitate conference coordination, updated information will be posted on the BEA website. This page on the NEMA/NBS-AERho website will link to specific spots on the BEA website. Additional information can be found on the BEA website under "BEA Conference" or by clicking here.
- NBS-level student members (must have completed online NBS registration) will receive an e-mail from the BEA, inviting them to register as BEA student members. Student convention registration can be completed here. (NEMA/NBS-AERho professional members and advisors will have to wait until after February 10 to register.)
- Two important things to consider immediately.
 - Convention Paid Internships: Convention Student MMJ applications are due February 15. The grant includes registration, housing, air fare up to $500, and a $250 stipend for meals. (Click here for information/registration)
 - RAB Student Scholars: The Radio Advertising Bureau provides free registration, $150 spending money for convention, you will be invited to special sessions, and get matched-up with a mentor. There's a rolling deadline until all 150 spots are filled. (Click here for information/registration)
- Book housing here.
- The student convention program track can be found here. Find the full convention program here.